The strikers, it was reported, were increased by the discharge of one of their number Saturday, and were demanding his reinstatement. They were clustering in groups within the building and refused to leave until the police came up.

"The trouble was nothing serious," said Mayor E. E. Ellis vice president. "The men we discharged insulted the assistant superintendent of his department, and we, of course, let him go at once. REAL SNOW STORM HITS ATLANTA

Earliest on Record Here—Closes
Yield Up Wraps and Orders
Deluge Coal Dealers.

Pair Dixie took a leaf from the Book of the Arctic Records this morning, and that part of Dixie lying in and around Atlanta was coldly covered by a snowstorm that, for sheer and chilly earliness, compares favorably with any similar event lingering in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

It was a regular snow storm. It began at 8:45 o'clock and continued about fifteen minutes. From a mere flurry, swirling and eddying on the edge of a sharp wind, the downfall grew in thickness and size of flakes until tracks were beginning to appear on the pavements. And the biting power grew with the size.

But the pavements and the exposed portions of the bosom of Mother Earth were as yet unchilled after the lingering flow of summer, and the snow melted.

Then "Unmercantile Whisk." Almost as soon as the brisk flurry ended the driving white coverlet gave place to this blanket of slush, very unmercantile.

Then the sun came out, and by 7:30 o'clock the streets were beginning to dry.

The early snow appeared to be whirled up from the southeast. A few miles north of Atlanta there was no snow, a few gusty squalls of rain taking its place.

The brisk shift in the weather conditions was flavored perceptibly with an odor of muskblow. Overcast with wrinkles up and down the back were on people in the early morning light, with their accustomed complement of red noses and fussy spectacles.

Rush of Coal Orders.

It wasn't so cold, at that—just 37 degrees at 7:30 o'clock. But on the heels of a royal Indian summer the chill struck home, and many an Atlanta breakfast was hurried to the more or less musical tinkle of the furnace shaker or the resounding clatter of a gas making kindling of a dry goods box in the woodshed.

A rush of orders for coal was reported by the dealers, but so far the call for the plumb has not been heard abroad in the land.

It wasn't cold enough for that.

The Weather Office suggests it is just as well not to get unduly excited, as there still is some fine weather ahead. At the same time, the advice is offered that the coal bin should not be allowed to go hungry any longer, and that pot plants should be blanketed or taken indoors after sunset.

Fate of Wilburn May Determine Result of Accessory Charge Against Her.

MAISON, Ga., Oct. 20.—Katherine King anxiously awaits the outcome of the trial of Nick Wilburn, who goes to trial Wednesday for the killing of her husband, James King, one of the most prominent farmers in Jones County.

Charged and indicted as an accessory before the fact, Mrs. King bitterly denounces Wilburn, who charges that he was goaded into the killing by her. Surrounded by her three children, Mrs. King tearfully waits for her own trial.

Her friends and attorneys have stood loyally by her and on every hand there is the strongest denial of her guilt. Immediately after the killing, Wilburn admitted his guilt, but charged he was urged to it by his victim's wife. It was reported that she admitted this and feeling very intense. A change in sentiment, however, has been reported by the charge. Feeling has thus been brought up against Wilburn by the charge of the friends of Mrs. King that he is hoodluming the names of an innocent woman.

ARREST OF FISHER IS EXPECTED AS MOVE TO BLOCK POLICE GRILL

I. W. Fisher, the mysterious new figure in the Phagan murder case, who created one of the greatest sensations of the entire investigation by his declaration that he knew the murderer of the little factory girl and that her slayer was not Leo Frank, may be arrested and placed in a cell on a formal warrant before nightfall on an old warrant charging him with cruelty to his wife, who is suing for divorce. He disappeared some months ago when the warrant was sworn out, the police say.

The strange person, whose startling story was first told to Chief of Police Bodker in Birmingham, was virtually a prisoner Sunday and Monday in the tightly locked offices of Luther Z. Rosser, chief of counsel for Frank, in the Grant Building. No one was permitted to see him. His food was brought to him and the groups of persons who gathered outside the office in the hope of getting a glimpse of the accused of a prominent Atlanta man were disappointed.

Meanwhile, detectives in relays patrolled the first and second floors of the Grant Building. There was no way for Fisher to get by them without observation. Newspaper photographers, with their cameras set up for instant action, dozed on the hard steps, hoping to have an opportunity to get a flash of the mysterious personage.

Reporters who had trailed Fisher from Birmingham from where he was brought to Atlanta by C. W. Burke, an agent for Attorney Rosser, were on constant duty ready to resume the chase in the event that any new move was made by Frank's lawyers or there appeared an endeavor to hide him away.

The vigilance of an entire day and a night resulted in only the sensational statement of the quasi-journalist which was forecast very closely by The Sunday American. This statement was given out late in the afternoon by Attorney Rosser. Rosser would not reveal the name of the prominent man charged. He said that his identity must remain a mystery for a time at least. The only clue he furnished was that the man was fairly prominent.

Mr. Name Withheld.

"I do not want to use the name of the man," said Rosser, "and thus possibly do him an injustice. I will tell everything in the world except the name of the man."

The man who has told his story to us is I. W. Fisher. He once lived here and left here about the time of the murder of Mary Phagan, and since then has lived in North Georgia, Tennessee and Birmingham. He now lives in Birmingham.

"Without our knowledge or participation, he went to the chief of Police in Birmingham, George H. Bodker, and asserted that Frank was innocent, and that he had known of his innocence all the time, but that he didn't think Frank would be convicted, and therefore he kept his silence about the real murderer."

"He said that he met the man who committed the crime on Saturday, April 25, and that this man told him he was going to meet Mary Phagan in the hotel factory at night. Phagan said that when the man came from the factory he said, 'I raised him in there and you have got to get out of town.'"

"Since that time Fisher says that he has been in and out of jail and established in business here, has been paying his expenses wherever he went."

"Whether Fisher's story is true or false we do not know. We are not at all certain of it, but merely as one of the numerous stories which have come to our ears during the investigation of the crime. It is a story that has not been substantiated."

18 BODIES TAKEN FROM WRECK OF TROPIC TRAIN

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 20.—Eighteen dead bodies from the wreck of the special troop train from Rockhampton, Miss., have arrived here and are in a private morgue, and 11 injured are in the various hospitals. Thirty-three injured slightly, were taken to the hospital at Fort Morgan on the steamer Mohobah.

The train went through a Mobile and Ohio bridge near State Line, Miss. It was carrying 175 soldiers of the United States Coast Artillery in Meridian to take part in the Mississippi State Fair.

The wreck was caused by the engine tender jumping the track about 200 feet from a trestle. The engine was not derailed, and passed over the trestle safely. The tender broke loose from the engine, however, and plunged with the baggage car and three coaches to the ground, 25 feet below.

MILITANTS ADMITTED TO U. S.

Commissioner of Immigration Revokes Order Barring Mrs. Pankhurst From Country.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Federal Commissioner of Immigration Antonio Ciametti today revoked the order of the special board of inquiry denying Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the famous British suffragette, and stated that she was allowed to enter the country.

Commissioner Ciametti decided Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted on her own recognizance on these grounds:

"I have no doubt on the question of moral turpitude. She is a woman who can be prosecuted in the United States courts if she violates the law. Because she can be deported if she violates the law, Pankhurst's decision can be the subject of a conference held between the United States and Great Britain. Mrs. Pankhurst should be allowed to enter the United States of America so that she should be deported, 'as undesirable alien'."

A new recruit in conducting national affairs was set by President Wilson when he in person took the question of admitting Mrs. Pankhurst.

It was the first that the attorney's Executive ever had set to judgment in a matter involving the admission of a foreigner barred by the immigration authorities.

Whether this decision had been seen left to the Federal Commissioner of Immigration and the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. Interest in the Mexican situation and other affairs of state was overshadowed by the Pankhurst case. The account of the numerous appeals to President Wilson from all parts of the United States to permit the famous English militant suffragette to enter the country it was considered by the Pankhurst case. The war against her entry, played by a special immigration board of inquiry, could be lifted.

Secretary of Labor Wilson and Commissioner General of Immigration Antonio Ciametti were invited to the White House for a conference with the President on the question of revoking the decision of the special board of inquiry which ordered the deportation of Mrs. Pankhurst.

During the morning of the White House, the general tenor of the appeal being that Mrs. Pankhurst's political beliefs are identical with those of Americans.

Cabinet Men Beseiged. Suffrage leaders and women's organizations throughout the country did not appeal to President Wilson for the revocation of other members of the government. Secretary of State and members of Congress were beseiged "in the name of justice" to let Mrs. Pankhurst be allowed to enter the country at once.

Representatives of States in which women received special attention from the fair constituents. The whole question of entry or limitation of the famous foreigner of English methods in England hangs from the quality of her acts, while she is fighting for the ballot. Whether Mrs. Pankhurst's action involved moral turpitude or were wholly political in character. There were some who opposed the entry of the suffragette, contending that it would establish a bad precedent. Messages from anti-suffrage organizations pointed out that Mrs. Pankhurst is at present virtually a fugitive from England, where an indictment has been returned against her. They enumerated the charges against her that she encouraged arson, assault and malicious destruction of property.

HEARD MURKIN IN FEDERAL PRISON

Convicts Cheer Hawthorne and His Moyer's Supporters. Guard Is Doubled.

Officials at the Federal Prison were disturbed Monday by the menacing spirit of discontent among the 1,200 inmates following an open outbreak of defiance Sunday when the name of Julian Hawthorne was cheered and Sunday school workers who had upheld Warden Moyer were hissed.

Guards at the penitentiary have been ordered to keep a stricter watch than ever as a result of the trouble. The disaffection amounted to a virtual mutiny. It first manifested itself during the chapel services Sunday morning when the prisoners appeared to pay little attention to the exhortations. Ordinarily after the chapel service four or five hundred prisoners attend Sunday school.

Yesterday, much to the surprise of the church workers on hand, not a single convict attended. It evidently had been arranged that a boycott was to be put on the church workers because of their resolutions upholding Warden Moyer and denouncing as false the charges made by Julian Hawthorne.

As the prisoners filed by the amazed church workers there were shouts of "Hurrah for Hawthorne" and "Hurrah for Merton." The outbreak was so alarming that at mass the guard was doubled. A number of the women church workers were in tears.

RECORD-BREAKING SNOW HITS ATLANTA MONDAY

Atlanta tipped over its early snow record this morning just before 7 o'clock, when a whirling flurry of flakes snowed down out of a suddenly clouded sky which cleared almost at once, while the snow, after falling quite briskly for a quarter of an hour, disappeared from the air and the pavements. The only other snow that has fallen in Atlanta as early as October 20, 1913. The snow this morning melts without a trace. The two early snows were about the same in texture and quantity of flakes. "Merely flurries," Mr. Voelkner said. And, then, replying to a question as to where the snow came from, "It came from above," the weather man said. "Almost straight down. Clouds were passing over Atlanta and there was a light precipitation which would have reached the earth in the form of rain had it not been chilled by passing through a layer of cold air. It was converted into snow just for the benefit of the immediate vicinity alone. It would seem," the climate expert added, "that the snow should be allowed to lay long enough to melt, and then the clouds should be lifted, or taken, before they melt. Then the sun came out, and by 10 o'clock the streets were beginning to dry."

MYSTERIOUS WITNESS ONCE HEARD OF FISHER IS NEW REVELATION

Charged by his wife with being a raving drunkard, wanted by the police who give him a long court record, believed by Probation Officer Cogger to be demented as a result of accusations of murder made against himself, I. W. Fisher, the accused of a prominent Atlanta man in the Phagan case, was confronted Monday by a general disposition to ridicule his story and the threatened collapse of a sensation.

Kept a prisoner in the office of Luther Z. Rosser, while the police waited to arrest him, Fisher continued to be inaccessible to newspapermen, but various investigations of his record have facts that threw a dark cloud on his reliability. Detectives continued their vigil on the ground floor of the Grant building ready to arrest Fisher as soon as he made his appearance. In the meanwhile the Frank lawyers kept on investigating his story and seemed determined to hold their man a strict prisoner until they were entirely through with him.

Mr. Cogger's opinion was chagrined on the identity of an I. W. Fisher Cogger has had before him many times and that of the Fisher who has been virtually a prisoner in the Grant Building being the same.

Cogger said Monday that Fisher was tried several years ago for the murder of his wife's brother. He was acquitted, but it is known that a suspicion that he was guilty still rested in the mind of his wife and that the frequently charged him with the crime. These accusations are believed by Cogger to have unsettled Fisher's mind, a condition which perhaps has been augmented.

The "Fisher" Cogger has had before him lived at 797 Marietta street. An investigation of his record has disclosed that the man was placed on probation November 24 of last year charged with being drunk and disorderly and abusing his wife. He obtained employment and contributed to the support of his wife and children through the probation officer.

Fisher was before Cogger again on Christmas, and this time he was given employment with the Christian Helpers' League. He could not stay good, and February 21 he was arrested again, charged with drinking and otherwise mistreating his wife. He was bound over to the State court under bond of $200. He obtained his release only to offend in the same respect again. A peace warrant was issued, and he stayed in jail two days last May, and soon afterward he disappeared from the city.

Cogger received a letter from him last May, postmarked in Parkville, Tenn. He said that his trunk be sent him. That was the last Cogger heard of him until Fisher's sensational story appeared in the Sunday papers.

Mind Broken by Drink.

Grave discredit was cast on Fisher's story by Mrs. Annie Fisher, his wife, of No. 34 Morning street, who asserted Friday that she believed the tale of a "business man's confession" of the crime was the fabrication of a mind lured down by drink, perhaps by drugs.

Mrs. Alf Stallings, Fisher's sister, and Alf Stallings added their opinion in agreement with that of Mrs. Fisher. She declared she is convinced of her brother's guilt. "Mrs. Fisher carefully admitted, 'He is at times without any responsibility for his words or actions. He was once tried on a larceny trial taken out by his brother, a business man of Rome, Ga. They deceived him some at the time, but put him on probation. He left me August 12.'"

Both Stallings and his wife declared they have an idea he uses morphine. He left me August 12." Both Stallings and his wife declared they have an idea he uses morphine. He left me August 12."

He told them with so straight a face that I almost believed him. Stallings said, "But afterward I always found them to be untrue." He seemed to be quite curious about the crime. He and I went and we took our little girl, Evey

Atlanta tipped over its early snow record this morning just before 5 o'clock, when a whirling flurry of snow swirled down out of a suddenly clouded sky which cleared almost at once, while the snow, after falling quite liberally for a quarter of an hour, disappeared from the air and the pavement.

The early snow that has fallen in Atlanta as early as October 19, 1913. The snow this morning broke that record by nearly a week. The two early snows were about the same in texture and quantity of snow.

Then the sun came out, and by 7:30 noon the streets were beginning to dry.

The early snow appeared to be drifted up from the southeast. A mile north of Atlanta there was no snow, a few gusty sprinkles of rain making its place.

The break with the weather conditions was followed perceptibly with a change in the wind, which was blowing from the south, and the early morning rain was in the early morning light, with their accustomed complement of rain and fog and heavy and long showers.

Overcasts on Parade.

It wasn't an odd, that just 24 hours ago, at 7:30 o'clock, but on the heels of a real Indian summer the clouds came down, and many an Atlanta breakfast table assumed the appearance of a musical tin of the rain-maker or the resounding of an anvil making kindling of dry grass and leaves in the woodshed.

A mist of rain for coal was not needed, but the clouds, but so far as the plumber has been concerned, it was in the land.

Roads end enough for that.

Courts Adjourn Because Of Chilly Quarters.

Hamilton Douglas Goffs Cross Country 2 Mi. in 169 Strokes

Growing enthusiasm in the game of golf among Atlantans reached a climax Sunday when Hamilton Douglas, well-known lawyer and dean of the Atlanta Law School, accepted a wager of $100 with W. J. Gregory that he could play a full cross-country from the first tee at the Capital City Country Club into the postoffice at Buckhead in 600 strokes.

Cold and windy as it was yesterday morning, Mr. Douglas began his day with great zest, accompanied by three caddies to make sure of the count. He shot a few golfers around trees and through back yards, arriving at Buckhead well under 200 strokes.

When he surveyed the land preparatory to putting into the postoffice there was a small crowd there. But he put away into the main drive of the village, his total number of strokes being 169. The distance was something over two miles.

ALL SPONSORS FOR FISHER AND HIS STORY DISCLAIMED BY ROSSER

Here is the latest trend of events connected with the newest sensation in the Phagan case—the statement by Ira W. Fisher that Frank is not guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, and that a prominent Atlanta business man, known to Fisher, is the murderer.

4. E. J. Conger, probation officer, gives it as his opinion that Fisher's mind has suffered from long brooding over a murder charge on which he himself was once tried and acquitted, and that the continued use of liquor and possibly drugs has produced a hallucination which would account for the story he tells. Conger had charge of Fisher for about three months while he was on probation.

5. Fisher's wife states plainly that he is an incorrigible drunkard; that he did not leave Atlanta immediately after the murder (as he said), and that she would put no confidence in the wild story he tells.

6. Luther Rosser disclaims for himself and his associates all sponsorship for the story Fisher tells, but announces that it is being probed to the limit.

7. The growing impression is that this latest sensation in the Frank case is not of a substantial texture and will very soon be exploded.

Charged by his wife with being a raving drunkard: wanted by the police, who give him a long court record, believed by Probation Officer Conger to be demented as a result of accusations of murder made against himself, I. W. Fisher, the accused of a prominent Atlanta man in the Phagan case, was confronted Monday by a general disposition to ridicule his story and the threatened collapse of a sensation.

Set a prisoner in the office of Luther Z. Rosser, while the police waited to arrest him, Fisher continued to be inaccessible to newspaper men, but various investigations of his record bare facts that three a dark cloud on his reliability.

Detectors continued their vigil on the ground floor of the Grant Building ready to arrest Fisher as soon as he made his appearance. In the meanwhile the Frank lawyers kept on investigating his story and seemed determined to hold their man a strict prisoner until they were entirely through with him.

Police Haven't Seen Fisher. "I am not acting as sponsor for Fisher or for Fisher's story," declared Mr. Rosser, at his office Monday. He kept the man for a few hours longer, and then if the police would like to have him they are welcome to him.

"You can't believe Fisher's story," declared a Georgia reporter. "I have said so many times." "The 'Fisher' Conger has had before him lived at No. 747 Marietta street. An investigation of his record has disclosed that the man was placed on probation November 14 of last year charged with being drunk and disorderly and abusing his wife. He obtained employment and contributed to the support of his wife and children through the probation office.

The strikers, who were demanding his reinstatement. The men were clustered in groups within the building and seemed to leave until the police came.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the English militants, was set free by the immigration authorities today as soon as they received official notification that "Commissioner General Cammelt had found her not guilty of 'moral turpitude' and within an hour made a public speech before a crowd that thronged the Battery.

Mrs. Pankhurst left Ellis Island on a Government tug at 12:10 o'clock and landed twenty minutes later at the Battery. She had been accompanied across the bay by 25 armed outposts who had gone to the island earlier in the day to arrest her, and when she left the boat she found awaiting her a crowd of several hundred, mostly women, who cheered wildly for the English woman.

When the exclamation at the Battery had ended, Mrs. Pankhurst thanked the crowd for the reception it had given her, and then talked at length with the newspaper men.

"What has happened today is one of the greatest steps in the face that official Britain has ever had in its fight against the inalienable right of sentiment for woman suffrage," she said. "Ireland Britain does not want to tell the truth. Great Britain did not want to come to the United States for that reason. But I am here to tell the whole truth about the suffrage workers in Great Britain."

ed over to the police authorities late Monday afternoon. Attorney Rosser notified Chief of Detectives Lanford that he was ready to give the "witness" up. Detective Eugene Coker was dispatched to the attorney's office immediately. Fisher was taken to the police

Despite Shirley's denial of every accusation made by Fisher, the man persisted in his accusations. He went into detail, going even so far as naming the amounts of money which he said Shirley

That he will prosecute Ira W. Fisher, who names him as the principal in his sensational story of the Phagan murder, to the fullest extent the law allows, was the declaration made to a Georgian reporter late Monday afternoon by J. C. Shirley, the well known and respected Marietta street merchant. He has retained C. K. Graham, a lawyer who has already figured in the Frank case

"The whole story is a joke," said Mr. Shirley. "But I will investigate the law and determine how I may prosecute this man for this abominable fairy tale."

C. F. Shirley, who lives at No. 54 Flatshoals road and is brother of the man Fisher names, said Fisher was a drunkard and a gambler and a mighty sorry man all around. That appeared to be the opinion of all who have had any connection with Fisher.

Pencil Factory was until he read of the Phagan case in the news papers. He declared that he knew none of the girls employed there, except that he had heard that two girls who lived across the street were employed at the plant.

Fisher, in Luther Rosser's office, stuck to his story, but very little credence was attached to it by anybody.

Fisher, according to report, declared that Shirley had met him on the street on the afternoon of the murder and had declared that he had met Morn Phagan and "played hell."

When informed of this statement, the furniture man laughed.
"Why the man is crazy," he said.

afternoon. It came from Birmingham, where Fisher first made his sensational statements. The man is well known in business circles of Atlanta. He declared that he was not aware that he was the one referred to until he was approached Monday.

Mr. Shirley could not ascribe any reason for Fisher having brought the charge of murder against him unless he was demented.

Mr. Shirley denied having ever delivered furniture at the home of J. W. Coleman, stepfather of Mary Phagan, with Fishler.

Charged by his wife with being a raving drunkard; wanted by the police, who give him a long court record, believed by Probation Officer Coogler to be demented as a result of accusations of murder made against himself, I. W. Fisher, the accuser of a prominent Atlanta man in the Phagan case, was confronted Monday by a general disposition to ridicule his story and the threatened collapse of

Kept a prisoner in the office of Luther Z. Rosser, while the police waited to arrest him. Fisher continued to be inaccessible to newspaper men, but various investigations of his record bared facts that threw a dark cloud on his reliability.

Detectives continued their vigil on the ground floor of the Grant building. "He is not in here," said Rosser, and he strode away in the direction of his office door.

"I am not acting as sponsor for Fisher or for Fisher's story," declared Mr. Rosser, at his office Monday. "We want to keep the man for a few hours longer, and then if the police would like to have him they are welcome to him. Rosser yesterday morning has been given a shave and an overcoat. A pint of whisky was also seen to have been taken into Fisher's cell."

The arrival of Chief of Police Beavers in Rosser's office Monday

"Do you believe Fishers' story?" questioned a Georgian reporter.

"I have said my say," exclaimed the attorney.

"Can I talk to Fishers?" the reporter asked.

Mr. Coogler's opinion was contingent on the identity of an L. W. Fish-

We Drive a Nail and Hang a Fact on It

And the markets of the world are open to us.
And we have never yet failed to prove to Atlanta that we were alive to every opportunity that presented itself.
And we are rather happily reputationed for giving genuine bargains in our sales which come just as often as we can work

Now let's hang up a fact.

We will not be tempted in this sudden rush of busy-ness to forget the principles that underlie the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company way of doing things. As long as our efforts are centered on getting worthy merchandise for a fair price, we will not claim that we can sell worthy merchandise underprice.

But we do say that we have succeeded most admirably this season in putting several huge and solid stones in the structure centered on getting worthy merchandise for a fair price, we will not claim that we can sell worthy merchandise underprice.

But we do say that we have succeeded most admirably this season in putting several huge and solid stones in the structure of public confidence that we have been building up here in Atlanta these many, many years. We have gathered stocks that we are proud of, friend-making stocks that stand the one hundred cents

And it is in this spirit that we invite you to our store; invite

And it is in this spirit that we invite you to our store; invite you to make comparisons, to use your own judgment, to decide for yourself whether these one hundred cents to the dollar values are or are not better than the one hundred twenty-five cents to the dollar test.

We are full of confidence—it is an effect. We have been put to the test. We have succeeded, succeeded, this, again, better

We are full of confidence—it is an effect. We have been put to the test. We have succeeded, succeeded this season better than we ever have (the shades of many fine years pass before us as we write). It is rather remarkable what a good, strong fight

And now let your good judgment come in to guide you in your purchases.

And every customer gets it whatever she wishes to pay for her suit.

Suppose you now just look into this for your own satisfaction and see if these words about specialization do not fit in with the suit we show (or the coat or dress or fur) at the price you wish to pay.

The Millinery

No store in the South—very few in America outside of New York—has the millinery organization that we have. Through our connection with Estelle Merghon, 20 East 46th street, New York, the styles that bloom in Paris one week are in Atlanta a few days after the next week and, happily, at Atlanta prices.

The Blankets

The blanket stock—where things are what they are!

We reason along these lines about blankets—after getting as fine values as are to be got (at every price) why should we practice any other method than to tell our customers what is in this blanket and what is in that blanket? A contrary course would not change matters in the least. And as we have every confidence in the genuine worth of every pair of blankets we own, we are willing to have them judged by what we say they are.

REV. W. W. BRINSFIELD, Pastor

St. Anthony's Church, Lee and Ashby Sts.
Father O. N. JACKSON

THE ladies of the North Atlanta Baptist Church have assumed the responsibility of furnishing new seats for this house of worship now under way of construction. They appeal to the advertisers in the city of Atlanta to use The Georgian classified ads, cast votes in their favor and help them in their great undertaking.

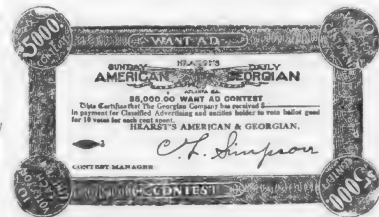

They need your assistance, and hope to be successful in landing the $1,000 in gold.

THROUGH the long experience and untiring efforts of W. W. Brinsfield, he is making attempt to thoroughly remodel and beautify St. James M. E. Church, an improvement long needed. He is about to complete this work, but the large expense has necessitated a considerable debt, and, in order to lift this obligation, appeal is here made to all members, friends and advertisers to use The Georgian Want Ads and vote for this church.

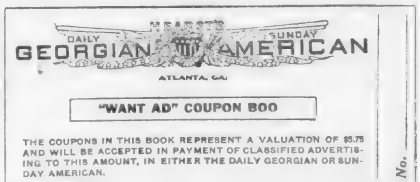

This assistance will be appreciated.

THE above picture shows the substantial foundation of St. Anthony's church, which was dedicated more than three years ago. The construction of this church is progressing very slowly, although Father Jackson and his members have been untiring in their efforts, and deserve assistance and the highest commendation for their loyalty. This is a most worthy cause and the aid of all Catholics, friends and advertisers will be very much appreciated. Advertise with The Georgian in their classified columns, vote for St. Anthony's church and be the possible means of their winning the $1,000.00 in gold.

THE WANT AD

This certificate will be given in placing your Want Ads with The Georgian—10 votes allowed on every penny spent. Beve it for your favorite organization.
